

Constructed Response Practice

Suppose you and your friend were playing baseball and you broke your neighbor's window. When you told your parents what happened, would your story and your friend's story be the same or different? What makes two people who saw the same thing have different versions of the story? Keep this in mind as you answer the question below.

Question # 2:

How would this story be different if it were written from Luisa's point of view instead of Fernando's?
